Round 4 was the first Umpire Appreciation Round, which encouraged the role of umpires to be celebrated...what were they thinking!?. The umpires wore lime green uniforms to raise umpire awareness. That's right, apparently we are not already aware enough of the umpires even though they are sometimes responsible for more goals than the players are.

Meanwhile we all thought that the Richmond vs Melbourne game would be the joke of the round:

Instead it was the 83 point pounding of Fremantle by St Kilda where Nick Riewoldt (5 goals 0 behinds) outscored the entire Fremantle side (4 goals 4 behinds)!

In tipping results, the fact that 5 of the 8 games this week went the way of the underdogs reeked havoc for most tippers. But that didn't stop $13.25 surges from both Brendan and Hilda. After a little encouragement (stupid of me in hindsight) Paul decided that a default strategy would be beneficial and so he employed his tried and true "last team alphabetically" strategy...and scored $12.48 this round¹. In fact, had he employed this strategy at the start of the season he would currently be third with $35.23 in total.

But even these gargantuan efforts weren't enough to claim the weekly prize in a round where the median return was less than the No Tips index; that honour goes to David with 6 from 8 and $13.98.

¹ And before I get any arguments from you Paul, Western Bulldogs comes after West Coast alphabetically
