

Weekly wrap up

Friday, 30 April 2010

					Home	Away
7.40pm		Western Bulldogs	vs.		St. Kilda	Etihad Stadium $1.70 $2.10

Saturday, 1 May 2010

2:10pm		North Melbourne	vs.		Melbourne	Etihad Stadium $2.00 $1.75
3:10pm		Adelaide	vs.		Port Adelaide	AAMI Stadium $2.60 $1.48
7:10pm		Essendon	vs.		Hawthorn	M.C.G. $2.65 $1.45
7:10pm		Sydney	vs.		Brisbane Lions	S.C.G. $1.50 $2.50

Sunday, 2 May 2010

1.10pm		Geelong	vs.		Richmond	Skilled Stadium $1.01 $12.00
2.10pm		Carlton	vs.		Collingwood	M.C.G. $2.45 $1.53
4.40pm		West Coast	vs.		Fremantle	Subiaco Oval $2.90 $1.38

Say what you want about Collingwood fans (for example, that they are low intelligence, fashion challenged, unruly mob of nuff-nuffs¹) they unequivocally draw the biggest crowds.

There have been 48 Home & Away matches with 80,000+ spectators in attendance and they are broken down as follows:

Collingwood	Essendon	Carlton	Richmond	Melbourne	Geelong	Hawthorn	St Kilda
34	14	10	3	4	1	1	1	Collingwood
	23	4	3	1	1	0	0	Essendon
		17	3	0	0	0	0	Carlton
			9	0	0	0	0	Richmond
				6	1	0	0	Melbourne
					4	1	0	Geelong
						2	0	Hawthorn
							1	St Kilda

Collingwood have previously managed 4 back-to-back matches with 75,000+ crowds (a feat only otherwise achieved by Essendon and Richmond one time apiece) and on Sunday they became the first team in VFL/AFL history to achieve back-to-back 80,000+ matches (with the ANZAC Day match drawing 90,070 and the Round 6 clash drawing another 80,645).

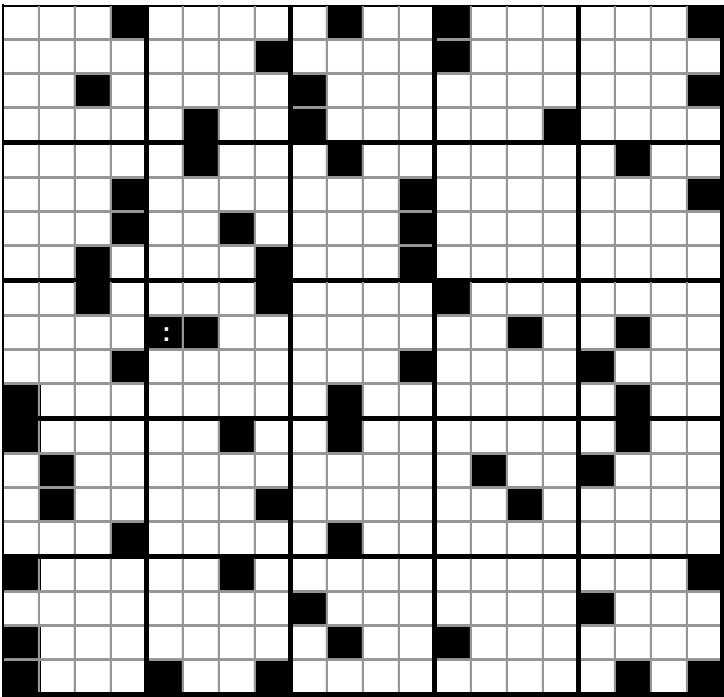

After placing second-last in the previous week, Leanne was the only one able to manage 7 out of 8 this week and becomes the seventh person to gain an entry into the second chance draw. At the other end of the spectrum, Paul is now the only tipper who hasn't yet broken into double figures in individual weekly winnings. Sorry Paul, gotta report the interesting stats as they emerge. Plus you support West Coast...so you bought this on yourself really.

¹ Just in case Eddie McGuire is reading, I said "for example", so this doesn't constitute slander. And just in case Joffa is reading...who am I kidding? Collingwood cheer squad members can't read.

Fun & Games

Congregation

This was a puzzle I wrote for April's Melbourne University Puzzle Hunt. It is called a "Jigsaw Squares" puzzle and you need to fit the each set of strings into its correct square segment. A black square indicates the end of a word and words do not necessarily end at the end of a line.

As you may have astutely realised, it has an AFL theme to it. Once you have fitted all the pieces together, try to deduce what is missing. Answers next week.

Phooty lookalikes

Give us a smile...

Western Bulldog draft pick Ayce Cordy and Bond villain Jaws

Gary Ablett and Wheezy from Toy Story